

Next Meats gets listed on first plant-based stock Index

19 March 2021 | News

Plant-based business expert Elysabeth Alfano and vegan investor Sasha Goodman revealed the VegTech Index earlier this month, listing 21 globally operating environmentally conscious companies which are traded publicly.

Next Meats is expanding its business rapidly, and their growth is definitely one to look out for

Plant-based business expert Elysabeth Alfano and vegan investor Sasha Goodman revealed the VegTech Index earlier this month, listing 21 globally operating environmentally conscious companies which are traded publicly.

In this Index the Japanese alternative meat manufacturer Next Meats Co. was listed, securing a spot along with Beyond Meat and Tesla. They are the only company listed from Japan, and is one of the eleven companies in the VegTech Index which is on the American OTC Market.

As warned in the original article, although Next Meats Co. has acquired an American SPAC, no deal has been concluded at this time and there are no shares of the company being traded under the ticker NXMH yet. However Next Meats is expanding its business rapidly, and their growth is definitely one to look out for.