

Australia based Eighth Day Foods raised $1 million, in seed funding

23 February 2022 | News

Eighth Day Foods announced that they have raised $1 million, in seed funding for LUPREME®; the global breakthrough in plant protein in just 2 days.

Eighth Day Foods is on a mission to create the world’s finest plant-based food products by enabling partners to develop and manufacture premium products that their customers not only expect - but will love.

Eighth Day Foods announced that they have raised $1 million, in seed funding for LUPREME®, the global breakthrough in plant protein in just 2 days.

“We were thrilled when we won the World Plant-Based Food Award in New York in December and to now be able to commercialize and scale faster with this funding is really exciting. We are regularly being told that no other protein tastes as good while being as kind to the planet” says Roger Drew, Inventor of LUPREME® and Co-founder of Eighth Day Foods. “What is truly unique about Lupreme is that its versatility provides food producers globally endless opportunities to develop their own wide range of quality products, that they develop to their own requirements.”

LUPREME® provides traditional food manufacturers who are developing new ranges of plant-based products or existing plant-based food manufacturers opportunities to develop ranges of quality new products or replace ingredients in products that are expensive and deliver premium quality at a price on parity with meat.