

Australia's Norco dairy wins Champion award for lactose-free milk

06 March 2024 | News

Australia's largest and oldest dairy co-operative is celebrating an utterly delightful win at the 2024 Australian Grand Dairy Awards for the sixth consecutive year

Australia's largest and oldest dairy co-operative is celebrating an utterly delightful win at the 2024 Australian Grand Dairy Awards for the sixth consecutive year

Norco Lactose-Free Full Cream Milk awarded Champion at the 2024 Australian Grand Dairy Awards

Norco, Australia's largest and oldest dairy co-operative is celebrating an utterly delightful win at the 2024 Australian Grand Dairy Awards for the sixth consecutive year.

A panel of esteemed judges tasted 380 of Australia's finest dairy products for flavour, aroma, texture, body and appearance, recognising Norco as one of the industry's most prestigious and highly regarded producers.

The delicious and creamy, Norco Lactose-Free Full Cream Milk made its way through a rigorous judging process and impressed the judges, claiming Champion in the Modified Milk category.

Michael Hampson, Norco's Chief Executive Officer, said it is an honour to be recognised as one of Australia's best-quality milk producers.

"At Norco, we see our cooperative members as champions and this award is a testament to Norco's high-quality standards and dedication to creating fresh, great-tasting dairy.

"From a product innovation perspective, we are always striving to deliver great tasting, quality produce even to consumers who can't drink milk, whilst offering additional revenue streams to our hard-working farmer members.

"Our farmers live and breathe dairy so it's truly a great accolade to celebrate our people's efforts," Hampson concludes.