NFFOODS Spectrum
perspectives on food technologies & business
ASIA

Baby Gourmet Foods issues product recall for Banana Raisin Oatmeal

23 July 2024 | News

The recall is due to possible Cronobacter spp. contamination

The recall is due to possible Cronobacter spp. contamination

Baby Gourmet Foods has issued a product recall to remove Baby Gourmet Organic Banana Raisin Oatmeal Organic Whole Grain Cereal from all in-store and online retailers nationally. The recall is due to possible Cronobacter spp. contamination.

No other Baby Gourmet or Little Gourmet products are affected by this recall and no incidents related to this product have been reported to date.

Since its inception, Baby Gourmet has been committed to providing the best and cleanest food for families. Baby Gourmet became the first baby food brand in Canada to earn the esteemed Clean Label Project Purity Award. Its products are tested for over 400 chemicals of concern such as heavy metals, pesticide residues and plasticizers. â??

"The safety of infants and children is Baby Gourmetâ??s top priority,â? said Jen Carlson, co-founder of Baby Gourmet. "As a company founded for our own families, our dedication to quality is deeply personal. We are steadfast in our mission to offer naturally healthy and clean food, supporting parents on their distinctive journey with their young ones. Food safety, quality, and the health of our consumers are and will always be, at the core of everything we do.â?

Consumers who have purchased Baby Gourmet Organic Banana Raisin Oatmeal Organic Whole Grain Cereal should dispose of the product immediately or return it to the location where they were purchased.