

Ty Nant acquires Strathmore Water from AG Barr

31 July 2025 | News

The acquisition ensures that Strathmore will continue to be bottled at source in Forfar, Scotland

The acquisition ensures that Strathmore will continue to be bottled at source in Forfar, Scotland

Ty Nant, the fast-growing premium bottled water company, is proud to announce its acquisition of Strathmore Water from AG Barr plc. The deal marks a significant moment for two of Britain's most respected water brands and reinforces Ty Nant's commitment to celebrating regional heritage, quality, and long-term investment in British manufacturing.

With a rich Scottish provenance and decades of brand equity, Strathmore has become a trusted name across the UK in hospitality, foodservice, sports and leisure. The acquisition ensures that Strathmore will continue to be bottled at source in Forfar, Scotland, and that every job at the site has been safeguarded as part of the transaction.

"This is a brand with a deep legacy and a loyal following, and we are honoured to be entrusted with its next chapter," said Raminder Sidhu, Chairman and Director at Ty Nant. "At the heart of Strathmore's success is the incredible team in Forfar. Their professionalism, passion and care are a true testament to the strength of the brand and the business. We're proud to welcome them into the Ty Nant family and excited to invest further in their future."

Ty Nant extends its sincere thanks to AG Barr for their outstanding stewardship of Strathmore over the past two decades. "AG Barr has been exemplary custodians of the brand and the Forfar operation," added Sidhu. "We are grateful for their partnership and support during this transition, and for the strong platform they've built both in market and on the ground."