NFFOODS Spectrum
perspectives on food technologies & business ASIA

foodpanda boosts bigger grocery runs with new, upsized pandamart stores

21 January 2026 | News

Since 2023, foodpanda has seen a 7 per cent increase in monthly grocery order frequency and an 8 per cent jump in the average number of items per order between 2024 and 2025

Since 2023, foodpanda has seen a 7 per cent increase in monthly grocery order frequency and an 8 per cent jump in the average number of items per order between 2024 and 2025

foodpanda, Singapore's leading food and grocery delivery platform, has launched two new upsized pandamarts (known as pandamart XLs) in Kallang and Yio Chu Kang, to support growing preference for convenient grocery runs with wider assortment choices and reliable availability of everyday essentials.

Since 2023, foodpanda has seen a 7 per cent increase in monthly grocery order frequency and an 8 per cent jump in the average number of items per order between 2024 and 2025, as shoppers shift from last-minute convenience to full pantry restocks.

"Across Singapore, we're seeing our customers shop more intentionally. They're planning better, spending smarter and stocking up in a single go. pandamart XLs are precisely built for this reason - to offer our customers more products, better value for their money, and with the same convenience they love," said Bhavani Mishra, Managing Director of foodpanda Singapore.

Each pandamart XL carries an upsized inventory of everyday staples, snacks, ready-to-eat meals, household items and more, featuring 30 per cent more products than a regular pandamart. The larger assortment also includes imported speciality and locally in-demand products, allowing shoppers to stock up more in a single order and receive their groceries in an hour.

The launch of these two new outlets follows the success of a pilot trial in Redhill launched in 2025, with three pandamart XL stores now in operation, each positioned to support wider delivery areas across Singapore. Across all pandamart stores, including XL locations, foodpanda uses hyperlocal demand trends to guide assortment and stock planning, tailoring each store to the neighbourhoods it serves.