The expanded agreement gives customers in Indonesia access to a broader range of ingredient solutions through Azelis

Azelis, a leading innovation service provider in the speciality chemicals and food ingredients industry, announced an expanded distribution agreement with Tate & Lyle in Indonesia. Effective immediately, Azelis will distribute Tate & Lyle's complete portfolio of ingredients and solutions in the country, adding modified starches, sweeteners, fibres, as well as stabiliser and functional system blends to the existing hydrocolloids range.

The expanded agreement gives customers in Indonesia access to a broader range of ingredient solutions through Azelis, supported by local technical expertise, application support, and formulation capabilities. Together, Azelis's application laboratory capabilities in Indonesia and the complementary ingredient and application expertise of Azelis and Tate & Lyle enable the two companies to help customers evaluate ingredients, develop tailored formulations, and address product development needs across a wider range of Food & Nutrition applications.

Customers benefit from broader access to Tate & Lyle's ingredient portfolio, combined with responsive local technical and application support and tailored formulation expertise from Azelis Indonesia.

Tate & Lyle benefits from greater customer proximity and stronger local market coverage, supported by Azelis's laboratory capabilities, technical expertise, and established customer relationships in Indonesia.

Azelis expands its Food & Nutrition portfolio with additional ingredient solutions, creating new opportunities with existing and prospective customers while strengthening its role as a formulation and innovation partner.

The agreement builds on Azelis's existing relationship with Tate & Lyle in Indonesia and expands the collaboration to a broader ingredient portfolio. Azelis also works with Tate & Lyle across key Asia Pacific markets, including India, China, South Korea, Australia, and New Zealand.

Astri Primadevi, Managing Director, Indonesia at Azelis, comments, 'Expanding our relationship with Tate & Lyle gives customers in Indonesia access to a broader range of ingredient solutions, backed by technical expertise close to their
